Heugle were also present, in addition to these mentioned, but the representation from the Saloon Keeper's Assoation was so small as to give rise to the question at once, whether any action of the meeting would be binding on the saloons. C. M. Blake, who with Lee W. Thomas, Lewis Fay, C. K. Michael, Edward Dicaman, and W. W. Robinson, members of the Labor Unions were present, said that he had been asked to atend a meeting of the association, and expected to find a large number of the representatives of the venders of Heurich's beer present. Mr. Lee, the chairman, said that he understood that the venders of this beer numbered over 200 in this city, and that he questioned whether so small a proportion could bind the majority by any

One of the members of the union corrected Mr. Lee by saying that when the boycott began the venders of Heurich's beer were over 200, but at present there were only 78. The other members, he said, would acquiesce in any action that they might THE ACREEMENT.

which was prepared by the labor union men for the acceptance of the association, was then read as follows:

"Wheras the boycott on Heurich's beer in the opinion of this, the Saloon Keepers' associaion, brings about an unsatisfactory conflict between the saloon keepers and the labor unions; and whereas it is the desire of this assoclation to co-operate with the labor unions, Resolved, that the members of this association agree to withdraw their patronage from Mr. Heurich, unless he agrees to employ none but union men, and buy all his building material from union houses, and should Mr. Heurich fail to keep his agreement to employ none but union men, the member; of this association will withdraw their atronage from Heurich immediately upon notification. Resolved, that the members of this, the Saloon Keepers' Association, do pledge themselves to employ none but union labor, and to buy none but union made articles." Some of the saloon keepers inquired what was the meaning of the provision requiring them to buy only union materials—whether if referred to the meat, vegetables, &c., that they used in their business. The reply was that it only referred to building materials, and did not refer to such articles as are used in the saloons, at the Schneider cottage, corner of 5th avenue with the exception of cigars, and as there was a | and circle. eigarmakers' union, al. the saloon keepers would bind themselves to sell no cigars except those that had the union stamp. While some of the saloon keepers said that they could get cigars cheaper outside of the city than inside, t they would be willing to bear that loss and sell union cigars. The main question, however, was the removal of the boycott. Mr. Rupli said that he was very anxious to have it removed, as it hurt his business and affected the entire city. He estimated that there had been $100,000 sent out spivester Gray, 110 carroll street northeast, of the city since the boycott began.

The union men said that he had deceived them once, and that they would only take action when they received his signature to the agreement, properly authenticated and guaranteed. This could be done by cable. An effort was made to have the agreement adopted by the aloon-keepers at once, but Mr. Lee, Mr. Godshown them consideration and done them favors, and they were not disposed now to inform him that they had signed an agree-ment to boycott him unless he also signed the agreement. They thought it more courteous to cable him the substance of the agreement, and then upon receipt of his action regard to it they themselves could take ac-

After further discussion it was decided to able Mr. Heurich and ask his acceptance of these terms, the understanding being that if he accepted, the boycott on the beer would be lifted, and that if he refused the saloon keepers themseives would boycott his beer and refuse to sell it. The meeting then adjourned until MR. HEURICH ACCEPTS THE TERMS.

The terms of the agreement were cabled last night to Mr. Heurich at Meiningen, Germany, at a cost of $38. An answer was received by Mr. F. $4,500, &c. THE CITY MARKETS .- The Official Price Current of the Washington Produce Exchange for this week states that the flour market is steady with more firmness in price of old wheat flour. The grain market is without special feature and market stendy. Old hay is scarce and market ply of butter is light and firmer on fine goods, which are rather scarce. The egg supply is not large, but ample for demand, with a steady market. The receipts of poultry have been about a car load per day. The market is unsettled and sales are necessarily at low rates. Prices may be better next week. Simppers veigh their poultry with full craws, which are empty when received, causing a loss of from four to six ounces on each chicken. This accounts for the loss of weight which is often complained of. Fruit of all kinds is in large supply and selling at any offer. Considerable stock arriving is comparatively worthless.

ROUND FOR CAMP WASHINGTON. From the New York Times. The Washington Light Infantry Corps to Depart To-night. PREPARATIONS FOR THE SUNMER CAMPAIGN BY THE SEA-SCENES IN THE ARMORY-THE ROSTER OF THE CORPS.

There were scenes of busy preparation at the Washington Light Infantry Corps' armory last night. Capacious camp chests were being packed, and everything being made ready for the transfer of the corps to-night to Camp Washington at Cape May. Quartermaster Breitbarth's office hummed with busy voices. Some raw recruits excited the ire and pity of the doughty quartermaster by inquiring whether they could carry valises, "You'd look pretty, wouldn't you?" exclaimed the quartermaster, "marching through Cape May with hand satchels!" Messes were allewed to have chests or trunks shipped as part of the corps baggage. Veterans of several campaigns were endeavoring to frighten recruits by detailing to them the particulars of lively attacks from mosquitoes upon the men when they were on dress parade and helpless. "Those mosquitoes are biggest and heaviest and laziest lever saw. said a corporal. "One of them lights on a man's nose and settles down there for the rest of his ite, too big and lazy to rise." The corps will leave the city at 10:30 o'clock o-night, according to the orders published in THE STAR, and it is expected to arrive at Cape May and go into camp about 8 o'clock to mor row morning. It is thought that there will be about one hundred and ten muskets in line. The corps will be accompanied by a large delega-

A National Pantheon. From Town Topics. (New York.) We agree entirely with the objections to Central park as a burial place. A tomb-even the tomb of a hero-in the people's pleasure ground, would be a scandalous incongruity. But does not the same objection apply to the Riverside park site? Let us have the monument, by all means; but the ashes of Grant need not rest beneath it. The whole matter should have more time and thought than has so far been given it, and the more it is thought over the more will it appear that we must build an American Pantheon at Washington. Our suggestion last week, of a National Panheon on the site of Washington's Tomb, at Mount Vernon, meets with much favor. understand that a well-known Washington gentleman, whose public spirit and liberality have already crowned him with honor, is deeply interested in the project. Several other men of means and culture in this city, Philadelphia and Baltimore, have also taken up the suggeston, and a prominent architect will be asked to prepare plans, Boston should be heard from next week, and it is possible that a committee will soon be formed to take action in the matter. With few exceptions the idea is applauded by the press. The asinine Graphic, however, gets up on its hind legs and brays this buncombe: The central and western portions of the Union have rights, and some day Washington will not be the Na-tional Capital. In that case Washington will cease to be national ground, and if Grant's remains were de posited there they would be lonesome indeed. When Washington ceases to be the nation's capital the nation will have forgotten the hero whose name it perpetuates, who selected its site, and whose tomb may be viewed from its hill-tops-the stately pile, crowned by a dome second in grandeur only to that of St. Peter's at Rome; the enduring and solid architectural embodiment of our national genius and development, will have crumbled into dust. The suggestion of the Graphic that Grant's remains would be "lon some" in company with the ashes of Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Lincoln, and other civic and military chieftains of the republic needs no characterization. Grant's Remains Must Come to Washington.

Long Branch Correspondence Baltimore Sun. The New York merchants, bankers and poli ticians who abound here all confess concurrence in the opinion of the rest of the country that Washington and not New York is the proper resting-place for the remains of General Grant.

There is a class of persons for whom sea air and bathing is more hurtful than helpful. Yet people who are regularly ill, year after year, while undergoing their penance on the sea coast, never think of asking medical advice. There is no manner of doubt that some receive harm, while others receive much less good than they otherwise would do if they were to adopt moderation in the use of a few were to adopt.

Thus were couples married more than five hundred years before Christ; and even more striking is the parallel to be found in the dissolution of such a marriage. This was effected by the diffarreatio. in which the parties sat on two separate sheep-skins, and tasted, presumably, of two distinct salt cakes, with the same formalities. Such parallels are always interesting, and this one clearly points to a survival.
